While the name suggests it's purely focused on wasting time, we've found that Jitter.li is actually a neat little service that tries to tell you what time it is where you are if you're having trouble. You may be surprised to learn that you can use it to plan what to do on your next vacation. How does it work? Jitter.li offers a variety of time and location options, like national time zones, locations, and the ability to view the sunrise or sunset. You can also specify whether or not you want to see a weather forecast, but you don't need to sign up to use the service. Once you've decided on the location and time, Jitter.li will present you with a list of events on the day or with the time or date that you chose. Each item has a link that takes you to the relevant page on Wikipedia, where you can learn more about what's happening that day or at that time. Jitter.li is simple, yet powerful For those of you who rely on a lot of exact times and dates, this service is a great alternative to calendars or mobile apps, which often can't provide you with what you need. Jitter.li can also provide you with an update about the weather when you need it. Jitter.li has been around for a little while now, and it's still one of the more accurate services out there for telling you the time. It's free and always will be, so you can try it out today. Going off the summer rush, I realized that Black Friday deals are very popular. When I first heard of Black Friday deals, I thought they were only a few days after Thanksgiving, but they seem to only be a few days before the holiday itself. The idea is that everything is on sale, so you can get a lot of stuff at a cheap price.
