One of the company's first software products, it was first introduced in 1980 and is now widely used by roofing and architectural professionals to create 3D designs, documentation and imagery. A sister product, trusscon (not to be confused with roofcon, which is the company's roof truss design program) was introduced in 1994 for creating a metal roof truss or truss support. Introduction Roof construction is the art of building a roof. An architect or designer creates a conceptual design for the roof, then a contractor or builder completes the project. Of the several parts involved, the design of a roof structure is the most complicated. Roof construction, like many trades, is an industry with significant technological advancement over the years. As is usually the case, new technology and design solutions are produced to meet the demands of the market. In the case of a roof, architects and designers typically use topological diagrams (e.g. view drawings) to describe the structure and its various features. The same information is presented in a 3D format using a CAD design program
