In this first of a three part webinar, Richard Kadrey talks about his career in video games, his new book that just came out, and how certain types of words can influence the reader's mood. First, Richard talks about how he got started as a writer in games, went on to co-found Spidersilk Studios, went on to write a great deal of Shadowrun material (including a new transmedia product), and finally moved on to writing novels. Finally, Richard answers your questions about the writing process and how he writes in general, and then gets back to the mechanics of language and how certain words can create certain types of responses. Please note, this is a webinar. If you have any questions you'd like to ask Richard, either before or after, you'll have to ask them after the webinar ends.
