What's new:

ful Folly Episode (Episode 1) I started this blog to discuss marriage, parenting, and making dreams come true. And I think I've more than accomplished those goals so far. Let's keep it going, shall we? Let's get one thing straight: I'm not a parent. My parents created the best human beings they could with how much they had at their disposal, so to speak. And I love my kids with all my heart. But I am truly humbled by the simple ability to nurture and raise other human beings. Parenting is not easy. Unless your kids are ones that naturally love you and aren't challenging at all. (Then they're super easy.) But this has been a joyous (and necessary) experience so far. In this episode of The Last Joyful Folly, I get into parenting, child rearing, and the daily messes that are created when you have little ones around. These are the things that frustrate me the most about parenting, but there are so many other things too. I tell you stories of the amazing, the trivial, and the mundane that constantly occur when I have children. Hilarious stuff at times. Stressful times at times. These are the experiences that many of us face as parents today. Please don't feel like you have to wait for episode 2 to get the good stuff. Subscribe to the channel, and I'm sure you'll find something new and refreshing to hear about! (Plus I read every single comment. I'm not sure how, but I do! So, um, thanks for that.) I hope you enjoy this episode of The Last Joyful Folly. I'll say this right now: I know I'm only getting started. I have 365 more episodes to record and publish and put out there for you guys. I'm incredibly excited about this. I want to share these experiences with you. And I'm so thankful for you all that are listening in and watching. You keep me going. 18 thoughts on "The First Joyful Folly Episode (Episode 1)" Hey A, Happy Fathers Day to you!! I haven't been to iTunes so I can't comment on it. I usually just download them direct from the show. But you can record them as often as Unlike the Game which was originally intended as a mere proof-of-concept, this new iteration of the game is a fully fledged game with more in-game features and menu items. Not to mention, it is free! If you're interested in the original game, you can still get it here: If you're reading this, I'm sure you'll agree that Frontier should be a permanent home. I'm just saying, it's not a mod. It's an updated game. ;) This new game is my first game design under the name "Hackastronaut" (aka my first work as a game designer!) Features: A full game with various items, items that are locked behind certain conditions and hints and tips to help you along your way. Survival Mode. Train your skills and play a simple survival mode to test whether your skills are suitable for this game. New Menu Options. Have the option to skip menu items which are not interesting to you. Ability to restart a level. If you get lost in a stage and want to start over again, press the "R" key. No Game Over Screen, you can go back to the menu whenever you want! I plan to implement more in game features, but these things will take up a lot of time and I want to know that it is something people would enjoy. So please give me feedback to help me shape this game into the experience

I want! Most items are locked behind certain conditions, for example, the Confusion Blurb must be enabled for the cannon to fire. Some hints and tips to help you out. What would you like to see here? Please let me know in the comments. :) Thank you very much!
