Players can equip items to change their appearance and to help carry around in GetAmped 2. There are several items, such as a driver's license, an HKP9, a custom backpack, a custom wheelchair, and more. There are also utility items to help heal, heal faster, and summon assist animals. Players can also acquire gadgets such as a camera, device that produces an EMP, a datalogger, and a vehicle. Equipment has a slot limit for each character. The items needed to upgrade equipment to a new level can be bought from the auction house. Players can select the armor, shoes, watch, or any combination of these items for each character. The items include high quality items for the highest levels. Dragon Ball Z

GetAmped 2 features tournaments and awards. Players can either find other players to fight against or go out to hunt and take down a player. The world within the game operates by three world seasons. These are determined by the location of the server, and range from Summer to Winter. When a player is hurt or killed, they drop in the nearest town or village. When a player returns from a mission, they will have points to purchase items from the auction house or earn new in-game currency. They will also have things to do such as sitting in the training area, or shopping for items in the shop. When they come back to the event and/or shop, their entire party receives medals, and they are given new rewards. A collection of 20+ weapons, each in 3-6 levels of play, with over 100 different player customization options, most of which are unlocked on the first level. Players can customize the look of their character from 3 heads, 3 arms, 3 legs, and 3 helmets. They can even decide what color their skin and hair is, and they can add accessories like hats, sunglasses, rings, charms, and more. In addition to the customization options, players can select from a wide variety of core characters, each with their own visual style. Inside the game, the equipment is categorized into styles, categories, and levels. Items can be unlocked by earning experience points by defeating other players. At the end of a match, the player receives experience points. At the end of every day, players earn 100 experience points per day. Every time they lose a match, that experience point total is decreased by 10 points, and every time they beat one or more opponents, the experience points are increased by 10 points.
